DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Tens of thousands of dollars in holiday savings clubs will be released to members Dec. 15. This money will give the Christmas shopping period a big boost in Danielson, for the great bulk of the money is saved by several hundred people each year for the express purpose of meeting holiday shopping expenses.

Treasurer Clifford H. Starkweather of the Danielson Trust company said Friday morning that bank will release approximately $30,000 on Dec. 15, just at the height of the holiday buying period. To this sum will be added thousands of dollars more also saved during the past year by other club members.

Mr. Starkweather stated that the great majority of the members of the Thrift club at the Danielson Trust company are residents of Danielson or villages in the immediate vicinity, although there are a goodly number of members in the club who represent other communities in this section of the county.

If upwards of $50,000 in holiday savings club money is released here week after next, business men will find a stirring boost in trade, and that appears to be the prospect at the present time.

Knowing that this is the first opportunity to get this money in trade, though outside competition will be strong, local business men have prepared tempting lines of holiday goods and will tell the public about them through the usual medium of publicity within the next two weeks.

The savings club habit has become well fixed in Danielson and each year finds the number of members larger. Seeing one person with a holiday check resolves others to go and likewise in the coming year, it seems.

It was discovered Friday that William V. Ballard of Brooklyn has two fractures of the skull and a serious injury affecting a bone behind his ear. Mr. Ballard was the companion of Sidney R. Bard of Brooklyn when the car was wrecked on the Brooklyn-Killingly state road about four weeks ago crashed into a tree and so dangerously injured Mr. Bard, who is still at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

Mr. Ballard remained seated in the wrecked car after the accident, blood streaming down his face from a wound near his eye. With some assistance he was able to walk from the wrecked car to another machine standing near by and was conveyed to his home in Brooklyn.

It was not believed at the time that he was seriously injured, although it was realized that the shock of the accident was a hard one for a man upwards of 60 years of age to bear.

Since the accident Mr. Ballard has suffered dizzy spells and had been determined to have X-ray views of his head made in the hope that the cause of the dizziness might be discovered. Discovery of the fractures, one of which is over his eye, however, seems to rule out that possibility.

Mr. Ballard will submit to an operation later, but at the present time his strength is not such as to make it advisable.

Mrs. Ada M. Cornell Leavens, 74, died suddenly during the early hours of Friday morning at the home of John Prior on the town of Plainfield, where she had been living. Mrs. Leavens was very well known in Danielson, where she lived for many years, also at Wauregan, where other years of her life were spent. Mrs. Leavens was the widow of Charles Leavens. She was born in Coventry, R. I., a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoxie Cornell. She leaves a son, Frederick Leavens, of Wauregan.

Another evidence that the climate of New England is capable of producing conditions and effects as improbable as the plot of a musical comedy was brought forth Friday when Mrs. W. H. Judson of Academy street displayed three dandelion blooms, picked on the lawn at her home on Thursday, Dec. 1, and as cheerful and colorful as their predecessors of last spring. Picking dandelion blossoms within 48 hours after a storm of sleet and snow may not be a unique happening, but it certainly is far from ordinary at this time of year.

Attorney E. L. Dacie, counsel for the town of Killingly, received notice on Friday that the supreme court of the state has denied the motion to erase, entered by him in behalf of the town, in the case of Miss Gertrude A. Wardall vs. the town of Killingly. The denial of the motion by no means finally disposes of the case, for counsel will now appear before the supreme court and argue the issues on which the case came before the highest tribunal of the state.

The case has been followed for a long time with the closest attention by hundreds of Killingly residents. Miss Wardall is suing the town for $5,000, claiming this amount as damages and for loss of salary as the result of being, she alleges, summarily dismissed as teacher of music in the schools of Killingly.

Various legal technicalities have figured in the procedure of the case through the superior and to the supreme court, and the end is not yet. The case has been a very expensive one to the town, as well as for the plaintiff, and whether the town finally wins or loses the case, various legal technicalities have figured in the procedure of the case through the superior and to the supreme court, and the end is not yet. Kiebart; finance officer, James E. Murray; chaplain, Dr. Edward F. Perry; historian, John H. Moss; executive committee, Edward F. Perry, Whitman; Danielson, Jacob Albert, Michael L. White, Ernest Durand.

Newly elected officers of Quinebaug lodge, A. F. and A. M., are: W. M., A. W. Marcy; S. W., Edward S. Duffey; J. W., C. E. Richardson; S. D., W. E. Moss; J. D., A. S. King; secretary, G. Allen Hawkins; treasurer, James Mahlon H. Geisler; S. S., E. S. Phillips; J. S., Harold Mansfield; T. W. E. Shippe; chaplain, L. P. Merriam; organist, Ralph Thurston; marshal, George P. Miner.

The officers were elected Thursday evening and installed by Past Master L. P. Merriam, assisted by Past Master G. Allen Hawkins acting as grand marshal.

Any person who desires seeing a sight well worth while will find a trip from Putnam to North Woodstock of surpassing interest for a week and outing. Those who have already viewed the destruction wrought by the ice storm of the early part of the week have been amazed at the extent of the destruction. Much has been said and written relative to what the storm did in the Woodstocks, but only those who have seen the wreckage can half appreciate it.

Weeks will be required to clear up the hundreds of cords of wood that are represented in the trees and limbs that are on the ground or that will have to be removed from trees to which they are still clinging.

The main avenue of destruction can be viewed from a motor car traveling along the state highway. At Woodstock, the mighty storm did its worst. The scene of beauty and admiration for years are in many cases ruined and in about every instance badly damaged. The campus at Woodstock academy is literally carpeted with great limbs.

While a big crew of telephone men have worked steadily on lines of the S. N. E. T. company since Tuesday that have no where near accomplished the big task that is before them. In one section between South Woodstock and Woodstock hill where all the poles went down, the line will be entirely rebuilt. Many new poles had been set by Friday.

What is true of the Woodstocks is also true of Pomfret street. This the cost will be several thousand dollars, it is said.

The supreme court again has found in favor of the defendant, Lewis, in the case of Alva Dixon of the town of Sterling vs. Byron F. Lewis of East Killingly. This case originated in a justice's court in the town of Sterling and was relative alleged damage by cattle owned by the defendant in trespassing on property of Mr. Dixon.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward and Attorney Charles L. Torrey, counsel for Mr. Lewis, contended from the first that their client was not liable for any damage that cattle of their client might have caused on the Dixon property because of the fact that there was no fencing on the Dixon property at the point where it was alleged the cattle entered.

The case went to the superior court and the decision was in favor of Mr. Lewis. An appeal was taken to the supreme court and after argument of the case there a new trial was ordered. Again the case was tried in the superior court and again the decision was in favor of Lewis. Came another appeal. By the supreme court the case was affirmed in favor of Lewis.

Attorney Harry E. Back and Attorney Charles E. Scaris were counsel for Mr. Dixon.

At the annual meeting of the Windham County Farmers' association in Putnam Friday Louis F. Barstow of East Killingly was elected president. Mr. Barstow is one of the active members and the association has been a leader in the work of building up pure bred herds in Windham county, specializing in Guernsey's at its own farm.

Members of the Civic federation held a meeting at the home of Mrs. E. H. Keach Friday afternoon.

Robert A. Spears of New London visited friends in Danielson Friday.

This has been one of the most difficult weeks in years for members of the fire crew working in this territory and they will be nearing the point of exhaustion when they end the week's work today.

Thursday of next week will be observed as the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, and there will be special masses at St. James' church.

Business men say that Christmas buying is already well under way in some lines, pointing out that the advice to shop early is being heeded.

A week end trip worth while: Visit Pomfret street and the Woodstocks to see the ice storm damage.

splendid three-hundreded avenue looks as though an cyclone had swept through it and many beautiful trees are ruined. All through the Woodstocks and Pomfret the damage that can be seen by a motor car driven along the state highways is but a fraction of what happened in the territory, but it is well worth driving 50 miles to see and this week-end will offer a good opportunity.

Hundreds of cords of wood will be obtained from trees that have been ruined in the neighboring towns. Woodchoppers were at work cutting and cording trees Friday, but they have weeks of work ahead of them. Along Pomfret street four-foot stacks of wood are piled at the edge of lawns much as one sees them in a woodlot that is being cut off.

A Woodstock resident who has recently come into that territory said Friday that in many years residence in the west where tornadoes rip things up occasionally he never saw anything that would even closely approach the damage caused by ice in Woodstock, and certainly no one hereabouts ever saw anything that will match what is to be seen at Woodstock hill these days.

The following item sent out from Webster shows what the feeling is there as to the possibility of the resumption of trolley service during the coming winter between the Grovesvorn and that place:

Webster officials believe that the recent storm has blasted all hopes of resumption of trolley service between North Grovesvorn and Webster. The poles along this line and wires are down and it is thought that the trolley officials will not deem it advisable to resume operations at present.

Following the last conference between town and trolley officials at the car barn in Worcester, General Manager Page said he would communicate with President Storrs of the Connecticut company and if his verdict was at all favorable he would write to the officials here at once. No letter from his has been received, and since the storm it is believed that resumption, this winter at least, is very improbable.

It was learned here Friday that Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Johnson, of Uxbridge, had the most terrible experience of their lives last Monday night in driving from this city toward their home town, the leg of a holiday motor trip to New Rochelle.

Their sedan was trapped in Douglas woods, wild country without a dwelling for stretches of miles, when a telephone pole crashed down just ahead of the machine and other poles fell farther ahead and to the rear, making it impossible for the physician to proceed either forward or to the rear. With his wife he spent a night of terror in the car while trees crashed down about them threatening to crush the car and kill them at any moment.

In telling of his experience Dr. Johnson said he did not realize the storm was so severe until leaving Putnam. The first of the sleet was encountered at Pomfret and more of it here, but Dr. Johnson did not hesitate to drive the first 25 miles to his home. It was at East Thompson, Dr. Johnson says, that he began to encounter really bad conditions, but a there were no obstructions in the highway he proceeded, hoping to make the drive through the seven miles stretch of Douglas woods before darkness fell.

His progress was so slow on account of the slippery highway and night came on so quickly in the heavy storm that he entered the woods when it was dark. He had driven about a mile into the dense country when wires began to snap and limbs came tumbling down from trees and a mile or two farther in an entire section of poles came down and trapped the car.

It was storming furiously at the time and neither the physician nor his wife, who have friends in this section, dared leave the car on account of the tangle of poles, wires and fallen trees and through fear of being killed by limbs and trees that were constantly crashing down.

From 5 o'clock Monday night until daylight Tuesday morning they remained in the car and then, through a deluge of alternating rain and sleet and snow walked three miles back to East Thompson, abandoning the car and getting a train for home, where they arrived at 7:30 Tuesday night to find trees and shrubbery at their own place in ruins. The car remained trapped in the woods up to Friday.

Seventy-five members of the Windham County Farmers' association gathered here at Odd Fellows' hall Friday for

CITY OF NORWICH GAS AND ELECTRICAL DEPT.

Their annual meeting and to hear and address by Dairy Commissioner James S. Whitley of Hartford and other interesting things on the program published in The Bulletin of Friday.

The farmers were particularly elated by the appreciative things said of their organization by Commissioner Whitley, who again reiterated what he has previously said relative to tuberculosis testing of cattle, that Windham county's herds are the cleanest in Connecticut and this is due to the herd organizations within the farmers' association and their activities in behalf of disease-free dairy cows. As attesting his appreciation of the work being done here, Commissioner Whitley left the National sanitary conference which he had been attending in Chicago in order to keep his engagement to speak in this city.

Included in the commissioner's address was a suggestion that Windham county be used as a model for other counties in the state in tuberculosis testing work. This work, on a county-wide scale, is today far ahead of similar work in every other county, but even better results are anticipated here if the campaign for clean herds is made more active.

Comment was made over the fine businesslike manner in which various farmers reported to the meeting on various activities of their association, which is a real live organization of immense value to the county and becoming more so every year.

The officers elected at the meeting included Louis P. Barstow of East Killingly, president; John R. Strimberg of Abington, vice president; and Whitman Danielson of Putnam, health secretary-treasurer.

Not long ago a party of Jewett City men motored to Wallingford in an automobile owned by one of the party. Down below Meriden they came to a bad turn under the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad, a place where many automobile accidents had occurred. Some Bible text field artist had printed very neatly upon the stone monument, "Prepare to Meet Thy God." One of the men tells of seeing nearly printed on a large rock. What Will You Do When You Die? A commercial field advertiser had printed under it, Use Culler's Salve for Burns.

Stories are reaching the borough every day, told by Jewett City people who were further north during the big northeast storm. A freight train went through Friday with many of the cars piled with snow. The day of the ice part of the storm, the mercury in Jewett City stood at 34, reports show that the freezing temperature occurred a little south of Putnam. Jewett City had a two-inch rainfall, and about an hour of hail during the five days' storm.

True to his promise, C. L. Barde, general manager of the N. & N. H. & H. railroad has sent a big gang of men to Jewett City to make improvement in the local freight yard.

The town is being searched for the best dramatic and musical talent to take part in the production of "Oh, Oh, Cindy," the big show to be presented under the auspices of the American Legion.

Already a gratifying number of characters have been assigned and the choruses are being rapidly filled. Herbert Thompson is chairman of the committee on the lookout for candidates of dramatic or musical ability. Rehearsals are to start Monday at which time the professional director is expected to arrive.

Among the well known entertainers who are assigned parts are Mr. and Mrs. Prentice W. Chase, E. H. Hiscox, Jr., Wilfred LeClair, Edna Sharkey and Alice Barnett.
